Purchasing Woolens For 19 Stores and 150,000 Patrons

THE immensity of this task can easily be realized.

It requires the services of an expert—one who knows woolens quality, style and pattern.

Mr. N. Trivers is the man on whom this important duty falls.
His unexcelled judgement now satisfies the patrons of 19 stores.
Trivers Woolens are unsurpassed—they're from the finest looms—first choice falls to us because of our large buying capacity. That's why Trivers Woolens are exclusive.

With headquarters in New York City, Trivers customers are assured the last word in Clothes Styles—from Maker to Wearer.

The Ordinary Retail Clothier Pays Even More At Wholesale

TRIVERS is a wholesale clothing house—originators of men's smartest styles—controlling 19 stores with a patronage of 150,000 men. The buying power of such an organization is recognized to the extent that many opportunities come our way that are unknown to the ordinary manufacturer

JACK AND JESS HUNT FOR CAMPS

Location on Shores of Lake Erie Inspected.

TOLEDO, O., May 8.—A hunt for sites for training camps for Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey was begun yesterday by A. Q. Thacher, matchmaker for the Toledo boxing commission, which is promoting the title fight here on July 4.

Several locations on the shores of Lake Erie were inspected at the request of Thacher, the promoter.
Willard has been offered the old casino grounds, a historic summer resort, less than a mile from the place where the ring will be set. The offer was made by the West Toledo Gun club, of which Willard was made a member when here with his circus three years ago.

A telegram to Thacher from Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, stated that Dempsey and his manager were leaving for Toledo. They will come by automobile, the message said.
There has been some discussion here as to whether the local commission would approve of Matt Hinkle, of Cleveland, as referee, but it is known that Mayor Schreiber, who is the dictating member of the commission, told Richard When he last week his plans would not be interfered with by the commission.

DEMPSEY'S FIRST DEFEAT.

with him next Monday night. It is a great opportunity, my lad, and I am going to pay you well for it.
That's fine," said Jack, vastly impressed.

So on the following Monday night he met Jack Dempsey in a four-round bout, which was the extent of the fighting permitted in Salt Lake City those days, and for four rounds Dempsey gave him a nice little slapping.

Dempsey knew something about boxing. He pranced around the big farmer from the fruit belt of the Continental state without much difficulty, jabbing him, hooking him and otherwise mal-treating him. He got the decision, all right, but at no stage of the four-round journey was Jack Dempsey absent from the fight.

There was a pretty good audience present, and Dempsey impressed it deeply. They liked the way he kept walking in to the more experienced Dempsey and slapping away with both hands. Even Hardy Dempsey was impressed. He interviewed Dempsey immediately after the go.

"I'm going to put you fellows on again," he said, and this time I'm going to do better by you, Dempsey. I'm going to pay you well, and here he paused impressively.

"Why, why," stammered Dempsey.
"That's a half," concluded Hardy.
Seven fifty was what you might call means to J. Dempsey in those days.

The following Monday night he had to fight the other fellow, but he had an incomparable spirit of aggression, and when he soaked the other fellow just and in a wordy sense. As compared to him, Dempsey was a man with a reputation.

Dempsey's disposal of the two brothers caused Hardy Dempsey to cast a speculative eye over this newcomer.
However, the work given him still further speculative one night when Dempsey came around to another of Hardy's shows, and offered to fight a chop who was booked to meet Dempsey.

This chap was a Colorado boy who called himself Young Herrera, after the immortal Aurelia. Whenever a man who has seen Aurelia Herrera fight some of these modern day tappers, and hears his admirer tell how he can hit, he has to laugh right out loud.

For how that Mexican marvel, Aurelia Herrera could hit! How he could hit!

He was a little fellow. The chap who called himself Young Herrera was a pretty good sized man, but he picked a first rate fighting man to plume. He reminded one of the original Herrera largely because he was so different.
Little Aurelia could "sock" harder with a "pulled" punch than young Herrera could when he was trying his damndest.

But Hardy Dempsey didn't let Jack Dempsey fight Young Herrera, that night, although Jack fought him a couple of times afterwards. It was in Herrera's mind that this rugged young rube from Colorado might afford his patrons some diversion, were he put on against the redoubtable Jack Dempsey.

"What do you think about that?" he asked Dempsey, with much the same feeling a man might experience in offering an unknown a chance against a world's champion.

"I'll fight anybody," said Dempsey, modestly. "Who is this Dempsey, I never heard of him."

"You may never have heard of him, but you will hear from him," replied Hardy, meaningly. "I'll put you on

Memphis "Y" Boys Win Third Place in International Hexathlon

The Memphis Y. M. C. A. boys won third place in the big International athletic Hexathlon (six event), promoted by the International Physical Department committee, at New York city.
One hundred and six associations competed in this big indoor meet and Memphis took first place in the United States, scoring 21,480 points. Toronto, Canada, Central Y. M. C. A. came first with 24,430, and Toronto, Canada, West End Y. M. C. A. was second with 22,480 points.

When it is taken into consideration that the Toronto association has been competing in this hexathlon for five years and has been a first or second runner every year during this time, it is all the more creditable to the Memphis boys that they won such a high place in their first year entry. They easily outclassed such large associations as New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Washington, Brooklyn, etc.
The following information gives an idea just what the contest is.

The date: The Boys' Hexathlon contest must be run off the last week in March.

The returns of the contest must be sent in to Dr. George Fisher, 347 Madison avenue, New York, not later than April 10.

Conditions of the contest: Associations must be members of the Athletic League of North America.

Classification of associations: Associations are classified into three groups: Class A associations having a boys' department membership of 300 members; Class B, having a membership of 100 to 250 members; Class C, having a membership of less than 100 members.

Number of competitors: Associations may enter as many boys in the contest as they desire, but only the scores of a definite number in each class will be sent in. Class A must send in the records of the best eight in each event; Class B must send in the records of the best five in each event, and Class C must send in the records of the best three in each event.

Weight classification of competitors:

Competitors are classified by actual weight as follows: 30-pound class, those weighing 60 pounds or over, and up to and including 90 pounds; 55-pound class, those over 50 pounds, and including 95 pounds; 110-pound class, those over 95 pounds, and including 119 pounds; 125-pound class, those over 119 pounds, and including 125 pounds; unlimited class, those over 125 pounds.

The events of the Hexathlon are: 20-yard potato race; 220-yard potato race; running high jump; shot put; standing broad jump, and snap under bar for distance or fence vault.

Memphis competed in Class A; 143 boys competed and the records of 93 boys were sent to Headquarters.

Assistant Physical Director H. D.
Schroek deserves a great deal of credit for this splendid record and for placing Memphis in the first place in the United States. The boys were very much pleased with the contest and with the showing made for the first year, and unanimously voted to work hard to win first place among all associations next year.

game 4:15 o'clock.

The Gas team meets the fast En-Arbe a pretty good one. The En-Ar-Co. team is now leading the league, and hope to have a clean slate after the smoke of the battle has cleared away today. However, the boys are going great these days with good pitching being served them and almost faultless batting.

Lamberson or McCabe will do the Gas boys' hurling while Stadtmiller will pitch for En-Ar-Co.

The second game is evenly balanced.
Both teams are strengthening their weaks, and a pretty good game should result. The Orgill team has been considered the best team in the league throughout the season through critical errors or spasmodic hitting on the part of the opposition while the Polarine have managed to stay even in the matter of wins and losses.

The Wholesalers' league stage their weekly double-header at Loeb's field Saturday afternoon. The Ben-Hur club meets the Van Vleet in the first game.
The Ben-Hur club is gaining strength steadily and the Van Vleet is being driven out of the city in their efforts to find a catcher, and if this aid reaches them they will be well worth while.
Dutton and Ray or Wilson will be the probable hurlers for this contest.

The second game is the feature game.
The Moore have been going good, and with a new catcher they have in view they anticipate the most stubborn game the league-leading Strattons have had this season.

Gunn and Jefferson will likely be the opposing hurlers.

The Memphis Union Station team are anxious to form a two or four-team Saturday afternoon league. Saturday from the lineup he has so far arranged.

The V. M. C. A., managed by Forrest Bradley, is said to be the strongest
